and Dorothy Thompson, a dialogue, "The Four Seasons," and a playlet, "Pandora's Box," from Room 3. Pandora (Dorothy Thompson) who will not heed Epimetheus (Gerald Rahn) insists upon opening the wonderful box, although at first she believes she has only brought trouble on herself, she is agreeably surprised when the fairy, Hope (Alice Jane Cauffman), springs from the box, bringing a wonderful message to all children.

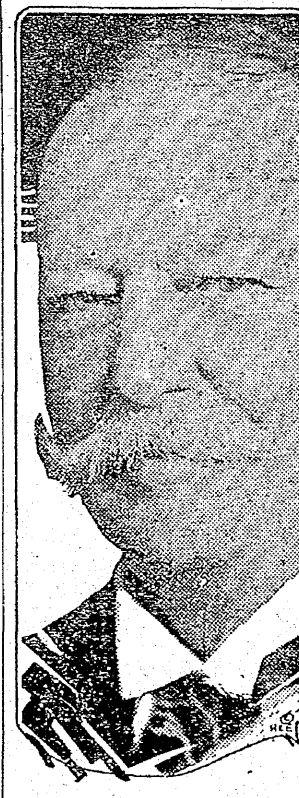

Room 4 offered a violin solo by Lucile Esterday, with piano accompaniment by Irene Eller, and a song, "Oh, the Happy Days of Summer," by eight boys and girls.

In the playlet, "Nimblewit and Fingerkin", given by Room 5, Dame Difficulty (Arvilla Crouch) an evil-looking witch, puts many obstacles in the way of Katinka, the woodcutter's daughter (Evelyn Ostrom). However, just as her troubles seem ready to master her, a wonderful spirit, Try (Louis Work), appears. Try soon summons Nimblewit (Clifford Mengle) and he in turn brings to Katinka's aid "the most wonderful little wizards in the world," Thumbling (Kenneth Carlson) and his brothers, the five Fingerkins (Sidney Peddler, Maurice Tutthill, Freeman Loney, Milo Pettit and Paul Crouch) who show Katinka that only by helping herself can she defeat the evil intentions of the wicked witch.

In the second playlet, also presented by pupils of Room 5, the Pixies, Flittermouse (Eleanor Reynolds), Thistlekin (Joyce Baker) and Fernseed (Dessie Smittendorf), all unknown to the peasant, Thulda (Albert McLean) and his wife Gretta (Ruth Shaffer) are spinning a robe for Rosadev (Esther Cone), the little orphan apprentice who tends their sheep and is constantly doing deeds of kindness for the aged, the weary and the needy. King Radnor (Thomas Peddler) and Queen Eleanor (Helen Mathias), who have tired of living alone in their great castle, come to the lowly home of Thulda, seeking for a child who is nearest to being a princess. Here the Pixies bring forth the robe they have been spinning for Rosadev "out of the love and sunshininess that looks forth from her eyes" and the queen sees that she is a true princess.

TAFT SEES CUT IN TAXES AS GREAT PUBLIC NEED

BY R. H. WHITNEY
NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The man who in all probability will be the next chief justice of the United States regards governmental economy and reduction of taxation as the greatest necessities in the administration of national affairs.

It is before William H. Taft in his office room at the Hotel Taft 12 questions dealing with national and international problems and asked him to discuss them. He declined, saying, "It would be improper for me to talk upon these matters at this time. The president has gone into them very fully in his recent address in New York."

"But," I inquired, "do you agree fully with all that President Harding said; with all that he suggested should be done?"

"I will answer that, an thereby touch in a measure on these other questions you've presented," he replied. He stepped across the room to his desk and wrote what follows:

"I shared the pleasure which the 2,000 auditors of the president had in listening to the strong words he used in favor of economy in public expenditures and the adoption of methods by which it could be, and would be, promoted." (In this respect President Harding said: "There must be a continuing effort to keep expenses down to the minimum for every dollar of the taxpayers' money the government spends.")

"They were especially cheered as I was by the frankness with which he faced the tremendous difficulties which the problem of ending national extravagance presents, especially in the resistance of politicians and localities, and by his evidently sincere and considered determination to overcome all such resistance in the public interest."

"Only one who has had personal experience in such matters can value to the full the importance of such a speech."

APPROVES FISCAL REFORM AND BUDGET

"Of course, I cordially and emphatically approve the policy of the president in his proposed fiscal reform and budget (President Harding said in this connection: "Establishment of a budget system is the foundation on which re-organization must be based.")

"But, as the president himself pointed out, the adoption of a budget is only one step. The main reform must be in cutting down appropriations in many fields of expenditure with a ruthless hand. The numbing weight of taxation shown in the halt of business, in the spread of unemployment, and in the general depression, requires this."

While advices from Washington are that President Harding has definitely decided to send Taft's nomination for the chief justiceship to the Senate at an early date, Taft gives the impression that he will consider the appointment most seriously before acceptance.

Taking this post has been a grave question with him even if, as has been said, it would be the crowning achievement of a life honored in many ways, including four years in the White House.

Native of Elkhart Back After 25 Years' Absence

Charles Topper of Douglas, Arizona, who left Elkhart as a youth 25 years ago and who has been here some days looking after the settling up of his father's estate, finds so many changes in his native city that he declares he hardly would have recognized it at all if dropped into it unexpectedly. The population has practically doubled in that time, and the physical changes have been even more pronounced—such as the paving of streets and the erection of buildings in the main section, and numerous additions on all sides.

Mr. Topper has witnessed much of the blood and tragedy element in border history, and his narrative of personal observations read like the daily dispatches that have emanated from the "republic" of Mexico during the last decade.

He knows Villa personally, and declares the infamous Columbus raid was prompted by the bandit chieftain's desire to get revenge for the action of the United States government in permitting Mexican federal troops to traverse Texan territory to make a short cut to a place they reached before Villa's troops, and thereby successfully defended it.

Mr. Topper likewise knew the martyred Madero, who, he says, was "too civilized and humane" to successfully cope with the people he sought to govern in their present state of development.

Mooney Loses Fight to Win Release From Pen

By International News Service.
SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—Thomas J. Mooney lost his fight for a writ of audita querela. The former Pacific coast labor leader, whose case has attracted international attention, sought to obtain his release from San Quentin where he is serving a life sentence for alleged participation in the 1916 preparedness parade bombing, through invocation of one of the rarest procedures in legal history.

Judge Harold Louderback of the superior court, sustained the demurrer to the writ interposed by the district attorney on the ground that the writ could not be used to obtain release in criminal cases.

Hostilities Continue on Upper Silesia Front

By International News Service
LONDON, May 28.—Hostilities between the Polish insurgents and German volunteers in Upper Silesia continue without signs of a lull, today's dispatches indicated. Word has just been received here from Karlsbad that Polish insurgents have bombarded the town of Egerstein, using cannon as well as machine guns. An attack also was made on the important city of Kattowitz, the dispatch adds.

NO COURT TODAY

The superior court was not in session today. Yesterday it was thought possible that a session would be held today in order to expedite the conclusion of the case of the state against George Wilkeson of South Bend, who is charged with incest. However, the hearing of the evidence was not concluded, and further consideration of the case was continued until Tuesday, the jury being excused until that time.

FEELING GROWS AGAINST JINGOISM OF JAPANESE

By International News Service.
TOKYO, May 28.—Considerable feeling is growing here that Japan should muzzle her anti-disarmament politicians who find their chief political success in attacks upon the United States. It is pointed out that fact that the Japanese government silently allows such leaders as Admiral Kato to address thousands of people denouncing America and Americans, permits the engendering of anti-American feeling in Japan.

The correspondent has known for several days of events tending to indicate this anti-American feeling. It is also known that these events have been suppressed at the request of the persons involved. One now generally known was the attack by a Japanese upon the seven-year-old son of C. R. Hawley, American consul at Nagoya. In this instance the Japanese entered the Hawley garden. Fortunately, the boy was not seriously injured.

Two other such events, news of which has been withheld, occurred at isolated points. One case in particular would be sufficient to cause action in an American community.

By International News Service.

McCray of Indiana, and United States Senator Harry S. New of that state, besides several bank presidents and other prominent citizens of Indianapolis.

Quick was paroled to Oscar J. Conrad of Indianapolis. Quick's father is president of the Aetna savings and trust company of Indianapolis.

Power Farming with the Fordson

The Fordson Tractor is taking care of every power job: it is taking the drudgery out of farm work and solving the labor problem. Power farming with the Fordson reduces the cost of preparing land to almost one-half what it would be with horses, and saves a third to a half of the farmer's time. What machinery does for the factory, the Fordson Tractor is accomplishing on the farm—it is increasing production at lower costs and making farm life attractive.

Apply this power farming idea in your threshing. More and more farmers are making themselves independent of unfavorable conditions by using the Fordson tractor linked up with a light threshing machine. By seizing the right moment and being able to do the job without waiting and in quick time, crop losses are avoided and profits increased.

The Fordson operates with kerosene. When used on belt work, running at full power, at 1,000 R. P. M., the fuel consumption does not exceed 2 3/4 gallons per hour. It will run the electric light plant, operate the milking machines and straw bailer—will take care of every kind of belt work.

The Fordson plows 6 to 8 acres in a 10-hour day, handling two plows with ease in the average soil. It requires an average of only 1 1/2 to 2 gallons of kerosene to the acre.

It is the ideal year-around tractor. It will pay for its fall and winter keep in many ways such as road work, hauling grain to the elevator, pumping water and moving granaries.
